Holbrook News Notes

About ten or fifteen cars were marooned in the mud between Holbrook and Winslow last week. The rains in some places have been torrential and have made the mud holes extremely bad.

"Candies that make life sweeter" at the Novelty Shop.

Mr. Fred Crane left Holbrook on No. 7 last Monday evening, and he left without telling the News force goodbye, which leads us to conclude that he will soon be back. But just the same it is as well to let him know that we noticed it.

Mrs. Rees, Mrs. Hopkins, and Miss Mildred and Helen Hopkins made one party which motored out to the Snake Dance from Holbrook. On their return trip they stopped over for a day in Keams Canon as the guests of Mrs. Hammond.

Fancy satin finish pure sugar candies for parties or dinners at the Novelty Shop.

Atty. C. H. Jordan left Monday evening on No. 3 for the Coast. He is making a flying business trip and will return the latter part of the week. An awful lot of folks are going to the Coast lately, and most of them of the masculine persuasion. Wonder where the joker is? Guess we will have to give this some attention.

Mr. Chas. Cook of the Adamana Oil Co. returned from a hurried trip to Los Angeles last Monday morning. He left the same evening on the westbound train.

Arnold Lee left Holbrook for Los Angeles Wednesday. He will be gone for only a short time, returning in time for school.

Mrs. Klien of Kingman, a sister of Mrs. Jesse Hulet of our city, reached Holbrook early this week. With her were her own two children and Jack Hulet and his little sister who have been visiting their grandparents in Kingman.

Jess Pearce was in from his ranch east of Heber on Monday. Mr. Pearce has it pretty slick. When it is hot in the summer he moves up into the mountains, and when it cools off in the winter he changes residence to Taylor.

Frank Wallace came in from his ranch early this week.

Dr. Agee, sheep inspector, was taken quite ill early this week. The altitude seems to be too high for him and it affects his heart action.

MISS ELSIE GAY RETURNS TO HOLBROOK

In a telegram received this morning from Los Angeles, Miss Elsie Gay states that she will leave the Coast for a trip to Holbrook about the 28 or 29 and wishes to let all her friends know that she will be here for about two weeks. She will be willing to do what dress making she can during that time.

Romance and Treasure

The Cross-Cut

By Courtney Ryley Cooper

Many people who have followed the mining history of Colorado will recognize the Silver Queen and the Blue Poppy mines, described in Mr. Cooper's story. Everyone will find it a tale of most absorbing interest in its unusual combination of love, mystery, humor and the excitement of hunting the earth's hidden wealth.

The hopes, the disappointments, the realizations; the elements of calculation and of blind luck which enter into the most fascinating of human pursuits are fascinatingly told by one who knows his subject thoroughly, and, in addition, is one of America's most accomplished story writers. Readers will take a personal interest in the struggles of the hero and his pal, and feel a personal gratification in the good fortune which finally rewarded their perseverance and grit.

Miss Ellen Clarke, sister of Miss Olive visited the latter in Holbrook during the week end.

Jesse L. Boyce, he of the expansive smile and corporosity, was in Holbrook Monday, shedding a little sunshine through the pre-primary gloom. All joking aside, we enjoyed him, for he's a jolly good fellow. Mr. Boyce is a candidate for State Tax Commissioner.

MRS. F. R. GOODMAN HERE

Mr. McClanahan returned from Flagstaff Monday evening accompanied by his daughter Mrs. F. R. Goodman, more familiarly known to most of us as "Jo."

She will visit with her father Mr. McClanahan for at least week before returning to Flagstaff.

HOLBROOK---BELEN GAMES

Nothing got by Lee.

Arnold Lee's superb catching ability was a feature of the game and the hit Capps knocked out beyond Keams Canon bringing in three runs was the most spectacular moment of the contest. There were more straw hats in the air at that particular moment that there were on heads.

Capps sent a Liner over to Keams Canon.

As for the matter of good plays the boys were all tarr'd with the same stick, they all took in a notch in their belts and played 'em high, wide, and handsome. These two games provided the best baseball sport seen in Holbrook in many a day. We have a ball team that's a good one and don't tail along at the end of some other town's procession these days. No sir. Not any a-tall!

We hope that we will have more games with Belen at some future date as they have a dandy team of which they are no doubt proud. The summary of the last game was as follows:

R H
Holbrook 101 001 40x 7 8
Belen 020 000 000 2 11
Two-base hit, Parks. Home run, Capps. Three-base hit, Burton. Double play, Mansfield to Burns to Capps. Strike out, Parks 2, Ratliff 3. Base on balls, Parks 1, Ratliff 1. Batteries—Holbrook, Parks and Marcus. Belen, Ratliff and Collins. Allaround support given Parks.

LEGEND QUIETS FEAR

Volcanic Activities Fail to Disturb Older Hawaiians.

Hilo, Island of Hawaii, T. H.—Recent volcanic activity in the ancient pits of Makopuhi, Hanau and Napau, which have been "dead" since 1840, drained much of the lava that had made Halemaumau, the vast inner crater of the Kilauea volcano, so spectacular, and caused much fear that the lava would flow toward the sea and inundate the little villages of Kala-pana, Pansu and Puna.

The older generation of Hawaiians, however, entertained no such fear, for they remembered an ancient legendary agreement that had been made by Pele, goddess of the volcano, with Kama Puaa, the Hawaiian pig god, by which Pele promised her lava would never flow through Hilo or Puna to the sea.

Pele and Kama Puaa had an argument and Kama Puaa went to Halemaumau, Pele's home, to fight it out. The god and goddess fought until Pele was overcome, and she pleaded for peace, according to the legend.

"We shall have peace if you promise never to allow your lava to flow through Puna or Hilo to the sea," Kama Puaa said. Pele assented, and she has never broken the promise, fearing a return of the hated Kama Puaa, the legend said.

In 1880, when a lava flow was proceeding toward Hilo and threatened to destroy the city, the Princess Ruth came from Honolulu here and, standing near the flow, reminded Pele of her promise and her danger from Kama Puaa if she broke the agreement. The flow stopped immediately, according to the older Hawaiians.

On several other occasions Pele has sent her red-hot rivers in the direction of Puna and Hilo, but they have never reached the two places.

The last activity, resulting from an underground flow from Halemaumau that broke out at Makopuhi, 11 miles down the great southeast rift that leads from Kilauea, has changed the appearance of Kilauea, Hawaii's greatest scenic attraction, tremendously, according to persons now at the crater.

It is now possible during favorable wind shifts to approach close to the pit-rim in what was known as Pele's oven.

Although the pit of Kilauea shows no activity, volcano observers say that "she is not dead, only sleeping."

RAIN

Didn't stop the Holbrook-Belen Ball games, but if it had the first

Rain Insurance policy ever issued in Navajo or Apache Counties would have covered the boys' expenses.

HE SURE RENIGS PLENTY

After promising faithfully that he would bring back at least two good lively rattlesnakes so that those of us who were compelled to stay at home from the Snake Dance might have a few of the thrills at least, he reneged on the job. Nary a snake did he bring back, not even a little garter snake around his leg—and that is not all.

We are informed by those who should know that far from bringing them back with him, the fact is that he was so very coy about making their acquaintance that early in the game he engaged seats on the very top most row of the houses surrounding the kiva and perched there during the entire performance.

Knowing Mr. Toelle as a man who scorns any deviations from the straight and narrow path of absolute veracity we feel that there must be some mistake, and feel sure that when we ask him about it he will at least have a good snake story to tell us.
